

2010 ♦ ST1300

Half Sportbike. Half Touring Bike. All Honda.

Honda's ST[®]1300 is probably the best long-distance traveling companion a sport-touring rider could ever hope for. It combines sportbike performance and handling with touring-bike comfort and amenities. And it's built for the long haul, exactly why it's the choice of riders who spend long days in the saddle. Forget about those straight lines on the map—while they may be the shortest way from point A to point B, on an ST1300 you'll be looking for the long way home.

2010 ♦ ST1300

Key Features

- Powerful liquid-cooled 1261cc longitudinally mounted V4 engine provides plenty of smooth power for effortless acceleration and two-up riding.
- Programmed Fuel Injection (PGM-FI) provides superior fuel efficiency, easy startups and lower emissions.
- Aluminum frame combines optimal rigidity and tuned flex to produce excellent handling, superb riding comfort and wonderful road feel.
- Combined Braking System (CBS) and optional Anti-Lock Braking System (ABS) give the ST1300 plenty of stopping power, even under less-than-ideal conditions.
- Touring features include full-coverage bodywork, three-way adjustable rider's seat and two large 35-liter detachable saddlebags.
- Push-button, motor-driven windscreen adjusts to alter height and angle for more comfort, especially on long rides.
